

Welcome! :-)

I help you gain clarity, understand, and bring out your true essence at work. I assist in highlighting your personal and professional skills—those that define your purpose and that you can share with others naturally and easily, without major difficulties.

I also provide practical tools for writing your CV, crafting a cover letter, handling job interviews, managing stress, finding job portals, locating job opportunities, and developing a time-bound action plan. Additionally, I teach you the technique of active job search to find the most suitable and right job for you.

If a suitable job doesn't currently exist in the job market, I support you in creating a new one or in recalling and bringing to the surface a forgotten idea. I help you create and define it to launch your own business. I collaborate with professionals who not only have specific expertise but also proven personal experience in the field, selecting them as needed based on the type of activity you might share in the job market.
